Moyukh has completed her second year of the JD program at Osgoode Hall Law School. She holds an Honours Bachelor of Arts from the University of Toronto’s Munk School of Global Affairs.

In her first year of law school, Moyukh was recognized for her oral advocacy skills, notably placing as a semi-finalist in the Canadian National Consultation Competition. During her second year, she interned at Garden Court Chambers in London, United Kingdom, assisting in the areas of international and transnational law.

Moyukh spent last summer working at Osler as a 1L Summer Student in the Emerging and High Growth and Disputes practice groups.

Before law school, Moyukh worked at global tech start-ups in Canada and the United Kingdom, where she contributed to the development of their sales and international growth strategies.
